

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Composite image information which is generated by embedding invisible sub-information in visible main image information and recorded on a recording medium
5 is read. A spatial frequency component unique to key information used to restore the sub-information is extracted from the composite image information read from the recording medium. The sub-information is reconstructed from the extracted spatial frequency 10 component.